GOMPERTS' PLACE IN A. F. OF L. AT STAKE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Washington, Aug. 27.—What promises a struggle within the American Federation of Labor, with the leadership of Samuel Gompers possibly at stake, is developing as a result of the division of Gompers and the executive officers of the federation in the Russian-called international socialist conference, Sept. 8 to 16. The American Federation of Labor, Gompers sided, will not participate in the Stockholm conference, principally on patriotic grounds, believing it might prove embarrassing to the government. Gompers maintains the decision will remain unchanged despite the division of the British Labor Congress to take part.

It is admitted that the British action will add to the munition of the socialists and proletrians in and out of the American Federation of Labor, who have been vociferous in denouncing Gompers for his co-operation with the government through the council of national defense. The decision of the British, it is asserted, will widen the breach between the so-called radical and conservative factions in the federation. Gompers is a truly great power in the adjustment. The socialists and radicals believe the surrender of labor's privileges will weaken the movement. The result of the struggle is now a question of national defense. The peace council, which numbers some 500,000 members, most of them members of the American Federation of Labor, is centering its activities around New York, but intends to carry them afterward throughout the country. The leaders of the council assert there is widespread dissatisfaction with Gompers' policies. Gompers maintains that this dissatisfaction is to be found mainly among the foreign elements.

COMPLETE MUSEUM OF WAR IN PARIS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Paris, Aug. 27.—Paris now boasts of a museum unlike any other in the world. This is the "Museum of the War," the war museum of M. Henri Leblanc, and contains the most complete collection of documents relating to the war constituting anywhere. The idea of forming this collection occurred to M. Leblanc on the last day of July, 1914, before hostilities actually broke out. He began with gathering all the public posters concerning war measures posted in Paris. Today his collection fills twenty-two rooms. Every aspect of the war is here represented in documents and pictures. Posters showing the development of American sentiment till the final intervention have a prominent place. Every form of paper money issued in France and the colonies is represented. There are also countless specimens of "trench-craft" and war souvenirs.

He has presented the collection to the state.

NEED STURDY FAITH IN TROUBLOUS TIMES

REV. JOSEPH C. HAZEN OF PEORIA, ILL., FORMERLY OF JANESVILLE, TALKS ON WAR THEME.

TRUST U. S. LEADERS

Nation is Fortunate in Having Its Affairs Guided By Men of Christian and Democratic Ideals.

A simple informal sermon was given by the Rev. Joseph C. Hazen of Peoria, Ill., Sunday morning at the Baptist church. But it was beautiful in its earnestness, its clarity of vision and the sane outlook of the speaker on the present problems of the war. Rev. Hazen announced at the beginning of his talk that he did not intend to give a sermon as he had been asked by his parishioners not to preach during his vacation. He wished to call the attention of his hearers to three boys of Bible history: Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, and draw some lessons from their experiences. He spoke of the fact that they were ordinary boys with ordinary lives except they had the handicap of slavery among an alien race and with religious hatred of that race to endure. The king had caused to be erected an immense statue before which he commanded that all the people should bow. When these three young men did not bow before the statue and were interrogated, they gave the answer: "There is one God and Him only do we serve." Then, these young men were taken and cast into a fiery furnace.

The speaker called attention to three facts which were most plainly evident in the lives of these young men. First, they were squarely independent, and could say no to what was wrong, which is always a difficult thing to do, especially for young men. Second, they were thoroughly in earnest in their allegiance and stood firmly as upon a rock in that faith. Third, the speaker said, was most needed in the world today to overcome the war current of hatred that was flooding civilization. The feeling of doubt as to the wisdom of feeling of doubt as to the wisdom of the nation's policy should be replaced by the firm belief in the justice and mercy of the teachings of Christ. The larger outlook of the world would be especially in the United States, the conduct of affairs was mainly in the hands of Christian gentlemen who kept the higher principles of democracy and the brotherhood of mankind ever in mind.

The third principle which the speaker wished to emphasize in the life history of these young men was their faith and their hopeful belief in the future. This firm belief in a glorious future nothing could shake. The speaker closed with the thought that the king's blindness had cast the wrong thing into the furnace and saved the superficial things of life, and he gave an earnest appeal that his hearers should have the wisdom to select the better attributes of life and the strength to hold fast to them when attained.

A cordial little preliminary announcement was given by Rev. Ray C. Ewing made the prayer, and appropriate music was rendered by the chorus choir of ten voices, consisting of the church choir and with Alfred Olson rendering the solo part. Mr. Olson and Stanley Howard also sang with beautiful effect a duet, while with Mrs. Hazen presiding, a large audience present, which included not only the members of the Baptist society but also those of the Congregational church, as they have been holding meetings during the summer months.

A large number of the personal friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hazen were also present, and improved the opportunity to meet again. An informal little reception was held at the close of the church services and many friends considered it a real joy and privilege to again greet the Rev. Hazen and his wife. They are guests while here of Mrs. M. P. Leavitt and E. J. Hatterson, North Jackson street.

TELLS OF VISIT TO G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

Mrs. Alice E. Mason Gives Impression Of Recent Gathering of Civil War Veterans At Boston.

Describing her impression of the recent G. A. R. encampment at Boston, Mrs. Alice E. Mason of this city writes as follows: "As we neared Boston we passed a large training camp, and farther on a train load of khaki boys was directed for us to pass. They yelled, 'Hurrah for the Old Soldiers' and waved and cheered until we had passed. Boston has done itself proud in caring for its guests. Everything centered around the old veterans' parade and Tuesday which was a spectacle never to be forgotten. The streets were roped along the line of parade and hospital tents and attendants were stationed along the way to meet anyone who might need their aid, and let me say here all tribute to the boy scouts. From my seat in the grandstand I saw several over come with heat or other causes, and instantly the scouts were there with stretchers and a hospital attendant who gave them first aid and then conveyed them home or to a hospital ambulance.

"At the big camp-fire meetings in Mechanics' Hall, the aisles were constantly patrolled by Sons of Veterans, boy scouts and hospital attendants. We are fortunate in seeing the Russian Ambassador, Bartholomew, and his staff who came in autos and occupied seats in the reviewing stand. Capt. B. F. Barker of U. S. R. also stood in the reviewing stand in full uniform. When H. K. Kauland, superintendent of public buildings, noticed that Capt. Barker did not salute the stars and stripes when they passed, he went to him and threatened to kick him out of the stand if he did not salute. When it was seen Capt. Barker could salute the flag very easily.

"The next national encampment will be held at Portland, Oregon." Commenting on the trip through Ontario, Mrs. Mason reports that the crops are very poor, corn not even good fodder, some fairly good grain, gardens a failure, and very few apples.

WILL HELP MOBILIZE MENNIN DRAFT ARMY

Local Defense Councils Will Lend Services to Exemption Boards In Handling Men Called Out.

Local defense councils are called upon to aid the local registration and exemption boards in mobilizing the men of their districts for the national army. The state council in a letter to Secretary Starr asks him to instruct the local exemption boards to do their share in this work, and to report the plans made to the state headquarters. In this county the defense organization will have to aid in the mobilization of the men of the districts—Janesville and Beloit—which will multiply the work. The state council writes as follows:

"According to the mobilization regulations just issued by the President, the local exemption boards will have charge of the details of mobilizing the draft army. Members of these boards have been working hard and will be especially busy for the next two weeks in completing the work of drafting. They will need assistance in making the detailed arrangements for mobilization."

"Here is an opportunity for the county council to perform a worthy and patriotic service, by lending its full resources to the local boards. It is suggested that members of the county council, working under the direction of the chairman of the exemption board, can handle most of the mobilization details.

"According to the president's regulations, the government is to provide board and lodging for the drafted men before they leave for camp. It is necessary that five alternates be called with each group, but no provision is made for the board and lodging of these five men. The county council should see that these men are provided for. Please get in touch with your local exemption board at once.

"You will bear in mind also the suggestions already made by the county council of defense as an organization, or through the soldiers' pal committee, make arrangements for a suitable farewell celebration for the drafted men."

"Please report to the state council of defense within five days the steps you have taken to assist the local boards in their task of entraining the draft army."

"Very truly yours,
"A. H. MELVILLE,
"Executive Secretary."

FEDERAL OFFICERS ARREST LOCAL MAN

Visitor Taken By Authorities In Chicago Because He Failed To Have Registration Card.

Chicago is no place for the slacker at this time or is it a place for the man who appears without a registration card. One of Janesville's young men who lacks three months of being twenty-one years of age found this true last week while in Chicago. He had been in the city for some time, but had not obtained a registration card. He was taken into custody by federal officers and held in a cell until he could be released. He was then taken to a local jail and held there until he could be released. He was then taken to a local jail and held there until he could be released.

The events were happening in such rapid order that before the young man knew what was occurring he was on his way to the Federal Building to appear before the judge and his assistants. The friend of the local young man had just been held in a cell and was being taken to a local jail. He was then taken to a local jail and held there until he could be released.

PET HORSE SAVES MASTER FROM BULL

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Eau Claire, Wis., Aug. 27.—Henry Henneman, prominent farmer near Bloomer, probably owes his life to three horses, particularly one, a family pet, which displayed almost unbelievable intelligence in saving him from the horns and hoofs of an infuriated bull.

Henneman was knocked down, trampled on and horned by the bull and was nearly unconscious when three horses which were in the pasture ran up and with their heads and teeth drove the animal away.

The one horse, the pet, began caressing the injured man affectionately and when he reached up and put his arms about the animal's neck. With almost human intelligence the horse started towards the house and away from the bull. Henneman fainted on the way and dropped, and the horse stood by until assistance arrived.

COMPANY "M" HAS ANOTHER PAY DAY

August 26, 1917.
Pay day at last for Company M. After inspection we lined up this morning and all marched over to the paymaster's headquarters.

The paymaster was a happy man, and the boys are planning on spending a goodly share of their pay for little articles of comfort down town or over at the canteen. The canteens will reap a harvest of cash as well as the merchants down town.

This afternoon all of the boys were issued guns. It sure was a big thing for two companies to have their guns in preparation for "retreat." At retreat all guns must be inspected and they must be clean or else punishment is inflicted on the unlucky man.

The captain is rounding the company up in fine shape and it won't be long before Company M will be the banner company of the regiment. At the present time we are the baby company of the other companies regard us as beginners, but we can show them a thing or two when it comes to the captain in the regiment and one hundred and fifty men who are willing to do or die for him and the U. S.

There are to be several fine programs at the several Y. M. C. A.'s in camp this evening, and our boys are to furnish one of them. A detailed account of the program will be sent later.

The menu for today was as follows: Breakfast—Bacon, potatoes, jam, coffee, bread. Dinner—Potatoes, gravy, bread, steak, jam. Supper—Potatoes, gravy, bread, steak, jam.

PEACE WHEN RULERS HARKEN TO POPE

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 27.—That there can be no permanent peace on earth until rulers recognize the teachings of Christ and hearken to the appeal of the pope, was the keynote of an address here by Archbishop Edward J. Hanna of San Francisco before the American Federation of Catholic Societies.

"There can be no tranquility in the ordering of the world until men, moved by Christ's spirit, put their hands in the hands of the pope, not in the possession of many things, but in God the Father," declared Archbishop Hanna.

"There will be no permanent shining prince and ruler until the men who sway the destinies of nations recognize the great moral sanctions of life, recognize that the human being is more valuable than the material things of the world, recognize that mercy must season justice, recognize the higher code taught by Christ in accordance with which men are ruled by moral force, recognize and listen to the voice of the pope, the man who, in the ways of Providence, represents Christ upon earth, and who by his very place in the world's economy is by divine appointment mediator of peace."

DR. L. J. WOODWORTH GETS COMMISSION

Receives a Commission as a First Lieutenant in the Dental Reserve Corps.

Dr. Leigh J. Woodworth, who for some time has been in charge of the city free dental clinic, has received appointment as first lieutenant in the dental reserve corps, and expects to be ordered to report for active service at one of the army posts in the near future. Dr. Woodworth took some time ago, but just received official notice of his success. He has had no orders as to where he will be sent or what his duties will be, but as the members of the medical reserve are being sent to the big posts and cantonments as these are filled up, it is not unlikely that he will be ordered soon.

The archbishop urged personal sacrifice for the common weal and declared the real test of the church would come at the end of the present war.

Mrs. Clem H. Strickland of Houston, Texas, though herself of pure German descent, has offered five of her six sons on the altar of liberty and democracy. Her remaining boy is too young to go, but he also will volunteer if he reaches the age of nineteen before the war ends.

CARDS KNOCK OUT A WIN OVER JEFFERSON

TAKE AN 11 TO 7 SLUGFEST FROM VISITING BOYS AND CLINCH
SECOND PLACE IN CEN-TRAL STATE LEAGUE.

GET 13 HITS OFF BENN

Cards Use Three Pitchers Against the Visitors in Effort to Battle High
Wind.—Fiene Gets a Three Bagger.

Watertown next week.

After a gloomy beginning the Cards opened up a broadside of hits yesterday afternoon and trimmed the Jefferson boys 11 to 7. In one of the merry little tussles that have been played on the local grounds, Big Benn, the upstate Jefferson pitcher, lived up to his name in the second inning when he slugged opening batsman on the Cards, who was about as much use as any alarm clock that has run down.

If it hadn't been for a fluky decision in the second inning, when Umpire Schaefer called Schultz, the Jefferson second baseman safe on second, when everyone else knew he was out, the game would have been different. This gave the visitors a chance to fill the bases, and a two bagger by Hennings, with a passed ball a minute later, brought in the three runs that put the Cards in the hole. A run in the first and another in the third, gave Jefferson a lead of two runs. The Cards' prospects began to brighten. Rose, the pitcher, lifted from the Beloit Fairies, couldn't get his bull working with the high southwest gale, and after the disaster of the initial error, Fiene was ruled and Crodan went into the box. In the last of the fourth Korman opened up with a pretty two bagger, and then Schultz, who had hit a home run in the first, followed with a three run home run. Cards' pitcher, Fiene, then pitched a long one to center field, Cook hit a three run home run after the catch. This gave the Cards two runs and a lot better disposition and they started out to nail second place in the league.

Not a Jefferson man reached second in the fifth while in the latter half the Cards found their pace and knocked Ben into a cocked hat. Eberts opened with a safe hit over second and went to third. Then Crodan, who had hit through second base, Big Benn began to soar and walked Cook, hitting the bases with no outs. Then Big Benn pasted out a beautiful two bagger right through third base, and Eberts Korman and Cook all beat for home plate reaching there safe and sound with the aid of a poor throw home. Calhoun's but put him on first and Crodan, who had a chance to go home after Cavanaugh's long fly had been caught. Ryan was out at first and Delaney knocked a hit up to center. Four runs for the Cards, and the fighting spirit into the Cards and took a lot of the pep out of the Jefferson boys.

Along about the middle of the lucky fifth the fans began to notice Rose, the depositor mound artist, who had taken over the coaching job at first and who gave a little show there that would have put Hughie Schmitz to shame and certain seemed to get Big Benn's goat. Rose had hard luck with his balls, but his work in the coaching box won him a place with the fans. Janesville seems to be in the lead, and the idea of a run for the day was to make up for small numbers, for there was more cheering yesterday than there has been at any game before.

After a slack period in the sixth when neither side made a run, and when Jefferson made the one double play of the game, Lato to Schultz, Hennings, the Cards again opened the attack in the seventh. The visitors managed to fill the bases in the opening half with but one down, but then Crodan fanned a man and a tight double play nailed another at second on a good hit and Jefferson had to take the field without a tally. Cook opened with a safe base hit, went to first, and when Fiene was called at first, and then romped on home on a poor throw to third. Calhoun took a base on balls, advanced to second on Cavanaugh's one-bagger through short stop, and reached home on a poor throw to third. The same kind of an error brought in Cavanaugh a minute later for three runs in that inning.

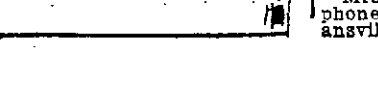

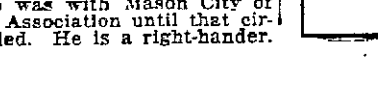

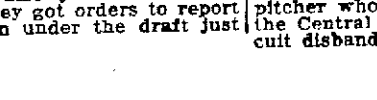

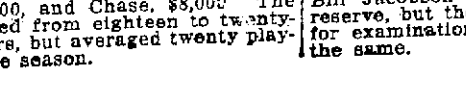

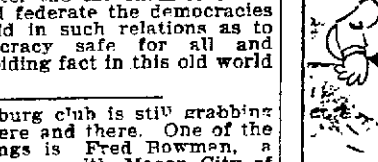

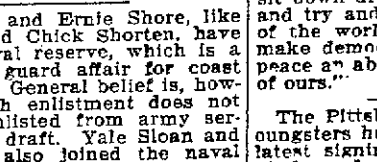

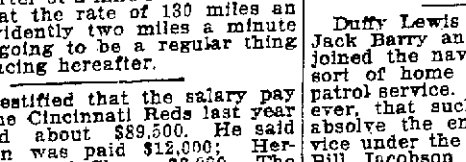

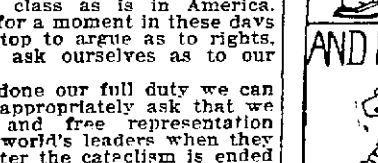

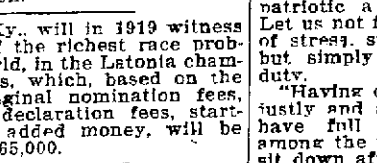

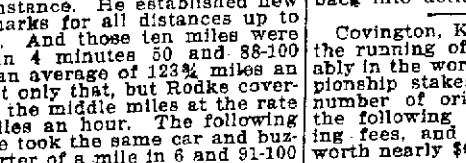

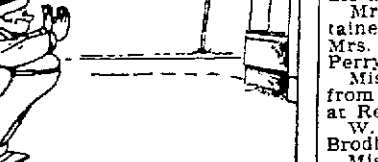

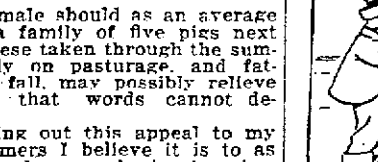

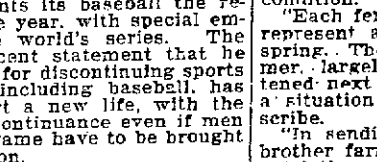

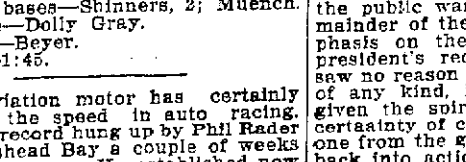

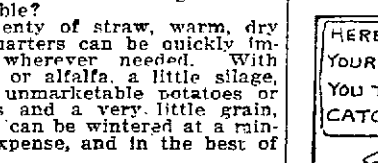

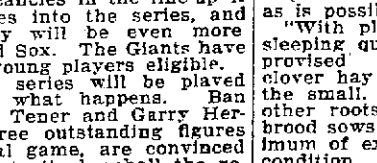

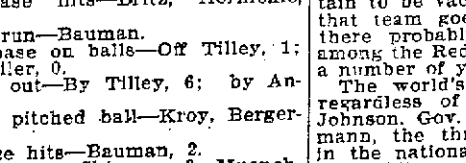

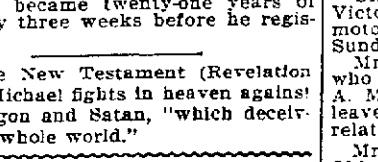

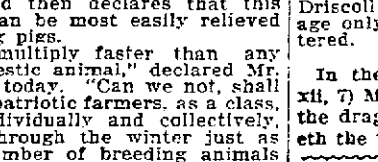

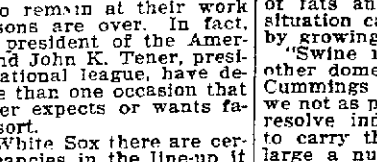

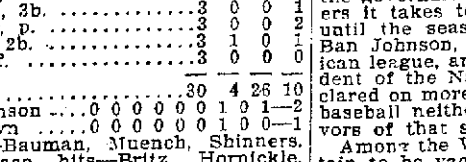

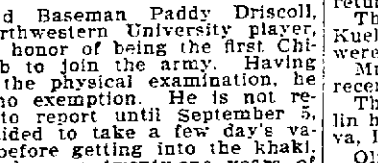

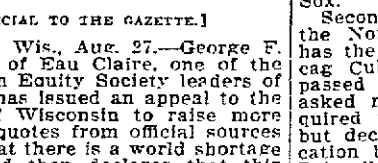

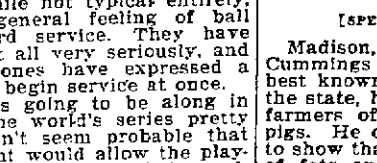

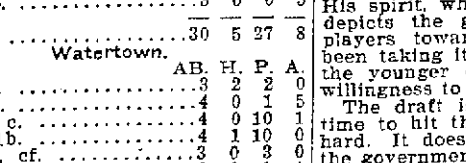

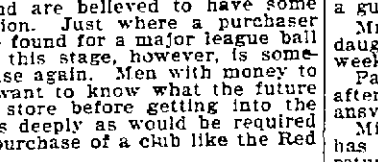

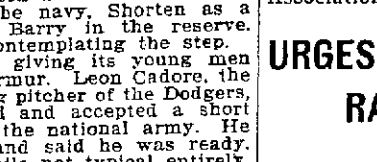

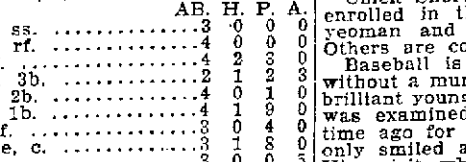

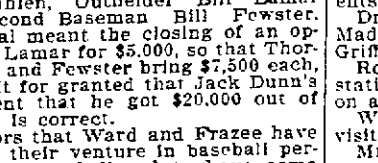

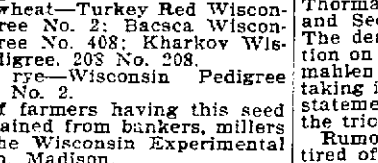

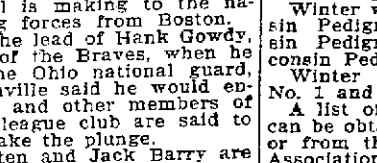

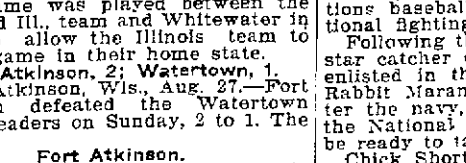

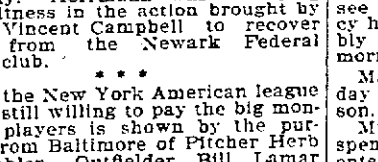

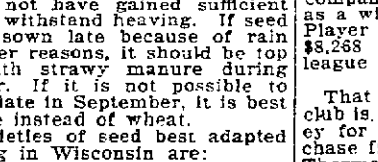

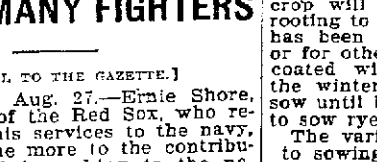

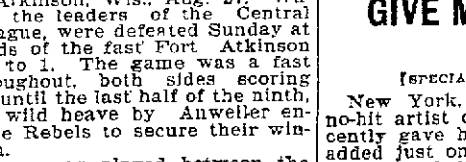

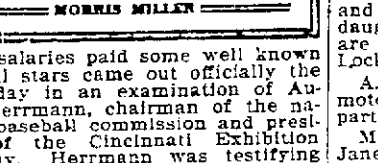

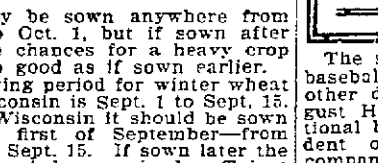

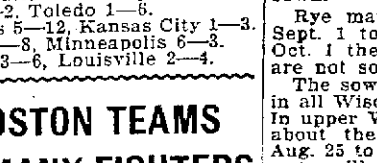

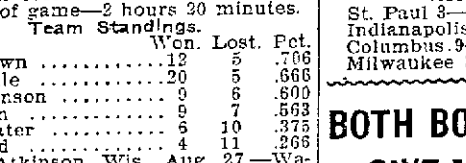

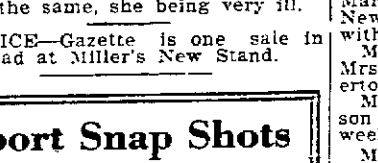

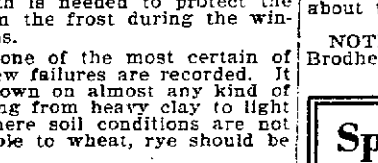

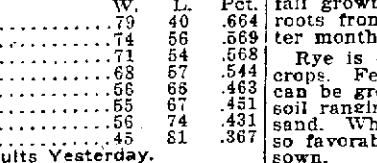

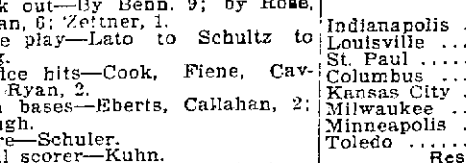

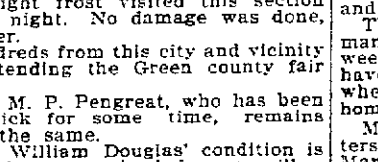

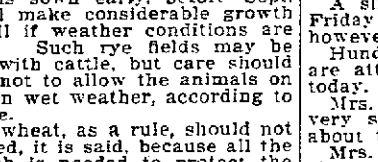

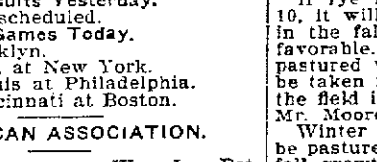

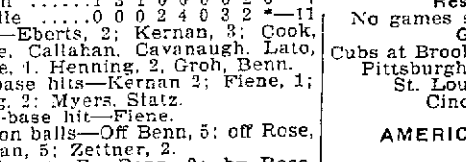

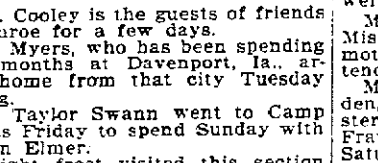

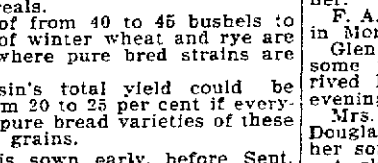

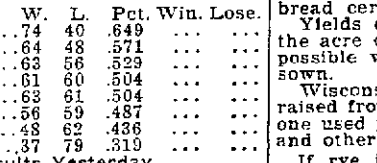

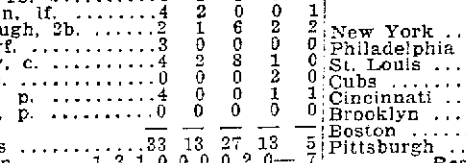

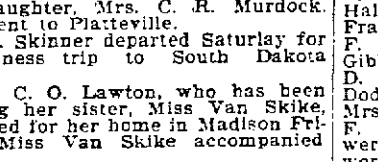

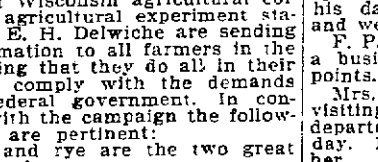

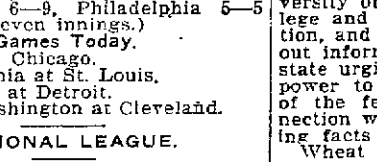

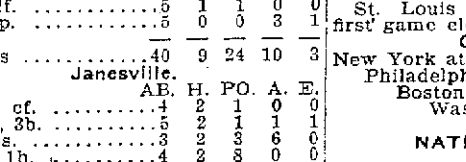

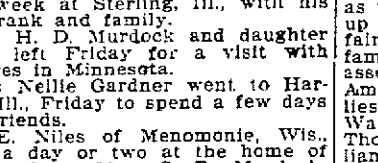

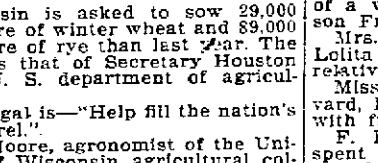

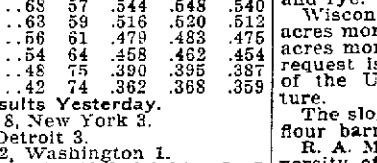

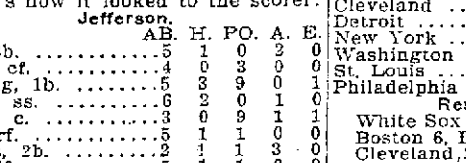

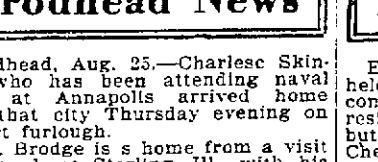

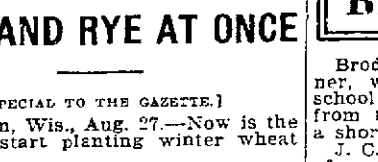

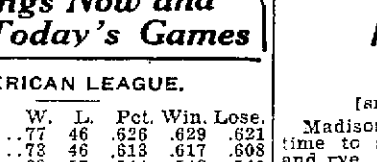

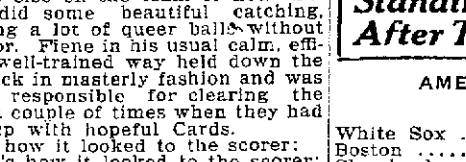

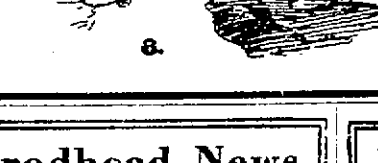

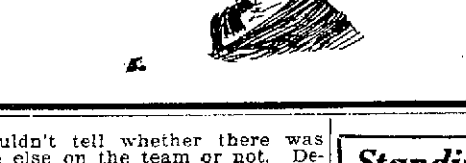

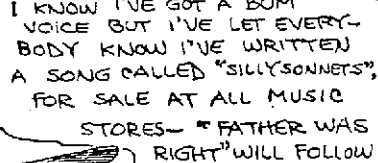

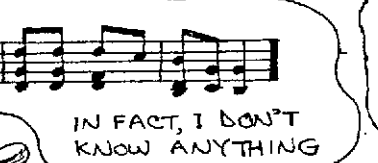

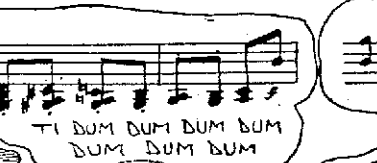

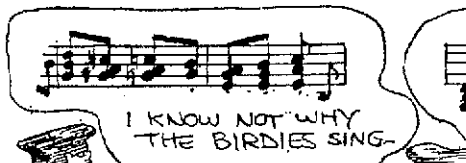

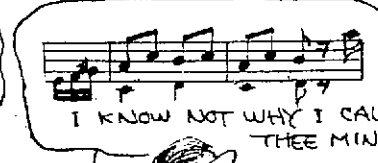

Crodan began getting a bit wild along about the last of the fifth. A City pitcher, secured by President Langdon, was sent to the mound to finish the game. Zettner had lots of speed, but the visitors managed to pick two runs off him before he got back to pitching into the teeth of the gale. A couple of timely hits and a poor throw to first were responsible for the tallies, and gave the Cards a good excuse to paste out a few more in the last.

By the eighth Big Benn looked pretty sad and seemed to be tiring; he walked Eberts and then let Korman slip safely to first by failing to throw a ball under right into his hands. Cook drove out a nice sacrifice, letting Eberts and Korman go to third and second, when old reliable, Low Fiene, whaled out what was probably the longest home run ever seen on the grounds, a three bagger, grooved right out between left and center field, and pretty nearly over to the half mile mark. This gave the Cards two runs for the night and the storm for the game, but Fiene had to die on third.

The guests only managed to get nine hits off the three heavies sent in by the Cards, while the local boys knocked Big Benn out of the game before the session closed. Benn did manage to throw a scare into the boys every now and then and struck out nine Cards before the fifth, in the same time that he had five men stricken out six and had to pass out.

The wind was too high for carefully time ball; at about five minutes past six a young man started a race up and until it had passed the catch-

SOW WINTER WHEAT AND RYE AT ONCE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Aug. 27.—Now is the time to start planting winter wheat and rye.

Wisconsin is asked to sow 29,000 acres more of winter wheat and 89,000 acres more of rye than last year. The request is that of Secretary Houston of the U. S. department of agriculture.

The slogan is "Help fill the nation's flour barrel."

R. A. Moore, agronomist of the University of Wisconsin agricultural college and agricultural experiment station, and E. H. Delwiche are sending out information to all farmers in the state urging that they do all in their power to comply with the demands of the federal government, in connection with the campaign the following facts are pertinent:

Wheat and rye are the two great bread cereals.

Yields of from 40 to 45 bushels to the acre of winter wheat and rye are possible where pure bred strains are sown.

Wisconsin's total yield could be raised from 20 to 25 per cent if every one used pure bred varieties of these and other grains.

If rye is sown early, before Sept. 15, it will make considerable growth in the fall if weather conditions are favorable. Such rye fields may be pastured with cattle, but care should be taken not to allow the animals on the land in wet weather, according to Mr. Moore.

Winter wheat, as a rule, should not be pastured, it is said, because all the fall growth is needed to protect the roots from the frost during the winter months.

Rye is one of the most certain of crops. Few failures are recorded. It can be grown on almost any kind of soil ranging from heavy clay to light sand. Where soil conditions are not so favorable to wheat, rye should be sown.

Rye may be sown anywhere from Sept. 1 to Oct. 1, but if sown after Oct. 1 the chances for a heavy crop are not so good as if sown earlier.

The sowing period for winter wheat in all Wisconsin is Sept. 1 to Sept. 15. In upper Wisconsin it should be sown about the first of September, and in the lower part of the state, about the 15th of September. If sown later the crop will not have gained sufficient rooting to withstand heaving. If seed has been sown late because of rain or for other reasons, the seed should be coated with straw manure during the winter. If it is not possible to sow until late in September, it is best to sow rye instead of wheat.

TRUE LOYALTY.

There is no question but that there are enough loyal men and women in this country to counterbalance the influences that the hidden enemies who favor the armed enemy, the ruthless Hun, either through racial affiliations or through maudlin sympathy, or seeking to create a special limelight for themselves. The war has just begun for America. The men and women who openly talk that it will end in a few months at most are in the same class as those who during the civil war days were certain that within a hundred days the confederacy would be crushed, Richmond taken, and Jeff Davis captured. The first battle of Bull Run, settled their hopes, and the citizens of the north and south settled down to a long, drawn-out affair that lasted for four years more. Just so with the European struggle. It has just begun for America. It will not be ended for long, weary months that will stretch away into years, perhaps. The Central Powers have not yet reached their limit. Thus far they have been successful. Have carried the war into the allies' territory, and today the tide is slowly turning against them and the battle line of the "murder of babies and violation of women and young girls" remains to be avenged. It is the civilized world against the imperialistic government of Berlin and the German Kultur. Unless this influence is checked the domination of the globe by force of arms, means the ultimate downfall of all that we have been taught to be righteous and glorious. The present dictatorial tactics of the government in checking the influences of the pro-German element means more trouble for us all later on and then we must depend upon the loyalty of our citizens to aid us in the long struggle that has but just begun in reality. Even if the war ended tomorrow, there are problems yet left to be solved that require honest, loyal and dependable citizens, either by birth or adoption. We had this same class of citizens during the civil war in the north. Citizens who sought to give material aid to the enemy by blocking the preparation to meet conditions, whose names are now either forgotten or classed with that of Benedict Arnold, hated by his fellow countrymen and even an object of scorn and contempt by the very men with whom he plotted the betrayal of his trust. Could Emperor William place in the halls of congress, in the United States senate, a tool who would work his will most perfectly to the detriment of the United States, he could not have found a better disciple of his doctrines than Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin. He is the type of the Copperhead of the States brought down to the minute and it is to combat the influence he has in this state that the loyal men and women must organize and be prepared to fight if need be the hidden enemies to the government and friends of a foe, right here at home. Let there be no mistake about it. The leopard can not change his spots and neither can the man who denounces the allies before the United States entered the war, and praised Germany, be counted as anything else than a foe to be watched.

LAW IS STRICT.

One of the laws passed by the legislature deals particularly with the punishment of the automobile driver who is under the influence of liquor and driving his car, a menace to himself and the public. The law makes special provision for the punishment of this class of undesirable citizens and gives the courts of justice, before which they are taken, much power in the punishment of it. It is a wise precaution for there is no class of citizens who are more dangerous to the peace and welfare of a community than a man whose brain is befuddled with strong drink, at the wheel of a high-powered auto on a city street or a country road. The crusade that has been started to bring this class of citizens to time is worthy of support, not only of other auto owners, but also of the public whose lives are endangered by the gyrations of these drivers. Judge Maxfield is taking the right step in handing out the limit to offenders who appear before him charged with this offense. He has the moral backing of the entire community and if the police would be half as diligent in arresting this class of citizens as they were recently in seeking violators of the tail light ordinance it would bring an end to the practice. A drunken man driving a horse has less sense than the beast, and often-times the animal instinct prevents accidents and trouble that the drunken driver did not even realize existed. However, take a drunken automobile driver and he is handling a machine that can not think and merely responds to the twist of a wheel. Gasoline and whiskey do not mix any better than beer and gasoline do, or any other strong drink. The driver who has imbibed too much, whose brain is befuddled, who is not himself, is as much to be feared as a dangerous reptile, and like the reptile should be placed where he can do no harm. The law prescribes for such cases, and if the police are watchful there need be no fear that Judge Maxfield or the presiding justice of any court of justice will not do his duty. Other communities have begun punishing this class of citizens, and those who have been brought into court here know it is not best to be caught. Let the good work continue until this class is entirely eliminated.

ADVERTISING.

Some men can think up queer arguments when trying to sell goods. For instance a dealer the other day said: "I don't advertise so I can give you what I save in that way in the cost of the goods." It was noticed that the man kept no clerks. He could do all the business there was for him on that basis without assistance. It would have been just as logical for him to say, "I keep no clerks, so I save that expense, and I give you the difference." Anything that increases business should reduce expenses. When a man increases sales by advertising or by keeping more help, the cost of selling any article, if the business is well managed, should be less than before. The trail and non-advertised business has too much overhead expense for its volume of sales. As a matter of common experience, it is not able to give low prices.

They say doctors are going to be scarce on account of the war, but of course we have all those patent preparations that are guaranteed to cure all human ailments, fifty doses for thirty-seven cents.

The government is requiring merchant ships to equip themselves with smoke screens. Some of the people who hang around our loading places could supply efficient auxiliary aid in this direction.

Hearing all this talk about auto-racy, many people believe it must be a good thing, as from the sound of the word it must be some new kind of automobile.

Some of these young men who claim exemption on account of dependents, are no doubt useful in delivering the washing by which their wives and mothers support the family.

Vacation Note: Among the summer sojourners are Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Romanoff, gone to Siberia to visit the rural retreats to which they formerly sent their dear friends the revolutionists.

The noise of the high explosive shells in the trenches must be nearly as bad as the racket the motorcyclists make on a pleasant Sunday afternoon on the macadam roads.

Whatever happens to the soldier boys, you can't cheat them out of the fact that they are going to get that free trip to Europe that they always longed for.

Sinkings of ships by submarines reduced one-half, is a pretty good four months job of that "wooden sword" of Uncle Sam that we have heard so much about.

Those drafted business men who make themselves out so necessary at home, convince the public that they are too valuable to be spared from the front.

After demanding and receiving protection of the public from lawlessness, the coal operators turn around and charge the public any old price for coal.

Some of our drafted men are sure of being exempted, as they are afflicted with either pimples, warts, or moles.

It would be awful if the government fixed coal prices so that some of the operators could make only fifty per cent.

Some people are opposed to the draft because it is a game of chance, and they are opposed to universal service because it is a sure thing.

It is denied that the plotters caused the munition plant explosion in Quebec, as they were busy destroying crops and inciting strikes.

If we get two per cent beer, people with the virtue of perseverance will still no doubt be able to get drunk.

CURSE THE RICH.

They enter the rush and the scramble.
They're practiced in cunning and stealth.
They barter, they game and they gamble.
For power and station and wealth.
They leer at the home that's a novel,
And poverty's pinch they disdain.
While low before Riches they grovel,
And kneel at the altar of Gain.
Is there any thought of the needy
Is there any pity or love?
Nay, the curse they bid downward rain
Whose only reply is a shove.
O ye, in who avarice rages,
O ye, of the desolate pride,
Take heed of the word of the sages
And cast all thy riches aside!
Be brave, ye may yet know the blessing,
Have heart and relinquish today
The pomp and the pride you're Possessing—
And throw all that riches away.
Be rid of the gauds so unseemly!
(And when you have flung them
Nay, I'm sure I will thank you extremely
To show me about where they are.)
The man who doesn't want to be slow and tight doesn't have to be fast and loose.

Juggled.
He spoke to very few did Lowe,
A timid little guy.
He speaks to even fewer now,
His books were also shy.

Male Shopping.
Usually the reason why a man marches out of a haberdasher's shop loaded down with shirts and collars and neckties is because he went in just to buy a pair of socks.
Many homes are made unhappy by men who do not take their wages straight home on Saturdays but go into haberdasher's stores to buy a collar button. After he gets on the bar with his bundles a man will begin to worry about baby's shoes and the gas bill.

No haberdasher's clerk will ever gain success and distinction unless he can persuade himself that you are a June bride. He must sell you a complete trousseau. If he loves his work he will simply carry you away with his enthusiasm.
The chances are he will take quite a fancy to you and show you how to be nearer about your person. He will tell you in a nice way that you should take more pains with your personal appearance. He will take your confidence and tell you, good nature edly, of course, that you are going around looking pretty dowdy.

After he has made you feel that you are quite a skate, anyway you look at it, you will come back at him if you have any spirit. He would certainly have a laugh on you if you merely bought a pair of socks and walked out. Order him to show you some ties. But a two-dollar tie and some silk shirts. And look at his buff buttons and stick pins. It is well to know that very neat ten-cent store cufflinks may be had in most shirt stores at two or three dollars the pair.
A man with a little pride will not let any haberdasher's clerk make a fool of him. But if you had walked out with only a collar or a pair of socks he would certainly have given you the laugh.

True.
Though a man is very honest
It takes a little pride beside.
Many men are on the level
And are also on the slide.

DON'T SELL POTATOES AT PRESENT PRICES

Government Reports Show Crop
Smaller Than Earlier Estimates, Says Word From Washington.

Potato growers of Wisconsin are instructed not to sell their crop at the prices now being offered by dealers and commission men. Secretary F. P. Starr of the Rock county defense council, has received the following communication from the state council:

"Magnus Swenson, chairman of the state council of defense, and federal food administrator, is now in Washington in conference with Herbert Hoover. Mr. Swenson sends the following information by wire:
"Government reports show potato crop much smaller than previous estimates. Advise farmers not to sell to dealers at prices now offered. Do everything to assure farmers of good prices."
We wish you to advise potato growers accordingly.

"Executive Secretary."

The Standard Oil Company Has Proven The Gravity Theory a Fallacy

IT BELONGS to the dark ages of industry, when gasoline was gasoline and before it was manufactured on a purely scientific basis.

Gravity, whether high or low, has no more to do with measuring the efficiency of gasoline as motor fuel than a foot rule to measure the brains of man, or his ability to reason.

You cannot but accept the consensus of opinion of the world's greatest petroleum chemists and automobile engineers. They say Red Crown Gasoline is the best gasoline in the world because it contains the correct adjustment of boiling points commencing at about 95 degrees Fahrenheit and continuing in a perfect and unbroken chain up to above 400 degrees Fahrenheit. Banish the gravity theory today.

9 OF 10 CONSCRIPTS TO PASS ARMY EXAMS

ARMY OFFICERS ESTIMATE THAT ONLY TEN PER CENT WILL BE RETURNED FROM CANTONMENTS.

OUTLINE MOBILIZATION

Arrange All Details for Sending First Quota.—Many Men in First Draft Already in Service.

Ninety per cent of the men passed as physically fit by the examining physicians of the local draft boards will be accepted by the army surgeons upon their arrival at the cantonments, according to the estimates of army officials, made at Washington today. This means that one out of every ten will probably be sent home as unfit for military service, or that a total of 8,700 men this way a check on the national army will be returned. The local boards will immediately call new men to fill these vacancies.

Every detail of the mobilization of the first quota is being worked out in advance and instructions sent to the local board that the entrainment may go off without a hitch. Draft officials at the court house today were notified of plans from Provost Marshal General Crowder together with ten transportation requests and fifty meal tickets to be used in caring for the first contingent of five per cent of the total quota for the first army. One hundred and fifty-two is the quota, and seven or eight men will make up the first contribution from here.

These men will receive notice to appear probably on the third or fourth of September; they will be selected for special qualifications on their previous military service or ability to cook. Upon their appearance before the local board they will be under the care of these officials until they are sent to Camp Grant, at Rockford, which will probably be on the fifth of September.

Provost Marshal Crowder is now preparing train schedules to be issued to the local boards. Any man who does not appear at the designated time will be classified as a deserter and arrested by the federal authorities. A man who fails to appear will be given a telegraph black with orders to wire from the train to the camp commander, stating the time of his arrival, in which case the man can be kept on all the men and no room for escape will be left.

As each man leaves for the camp he actually enters the military service and is under orders. Upon his arrival at the camp he will be assigned to a tent, will take a bath, get something to eat and will then be sent to bed. The next day the training will start in earnest, immediately after roll call and breakfast the men will be examined by army surgeons, and if qualified will be given a check and assigned to a company and the drill started.

Those who fail to pass will be given tickets and sent home, and new men will be called in their place by the local board of this district. In cases of slight defects or underdevelopment special exercises will be prescribed for those accepted to correct the defect.

On September fifteenth, forty per cent or sixty in this district, will be mobilized and sent to Camp Grant, and another lot of sixty on October third. The remaining fifteen per cent will be sent as soon thereafter as possible.

Notices have been issued to all of the 604 who have been examined in the district; they have not filed their claims for exemption. Their cases will be considered at a special session of the board on Wednesday of this week. No record has been received from Madison as to the action of the higher board on the claims for exemption on industrial or agricultural grounds filed by men from this district.

The 604 called for examination, 44 failed to appear, but of these all but three are known to be in some form of military service. The cases of Adolph Bell, 24 Wall street, and Arthur Robinson, 511 Wall street, two men not in service, are now being investigated. The draft board itself does not have jurisdiction over these cases, but turns them over to the federal authorities. Reports of each step in the process of conscription are made in detail to the government, and an accurate check is kept of every man in the draft.

Of the forty-two men who did not appear, twenty are in Company M, one in Company K from Whitewater, one in Company K from Beloit, three are in France, while others are in the officers training camps, at various army posts, or are listed as merely "enlisted."

MAKE REPAIRS ON CITY HIGH SCHOOL

May Be Considerable Decrease in Enrollment Because of War and Shortage of Farm Labor.

With the postponement of the opening of the city schools until the seventh of September, the rush of preparing the high school building for the coming year has been greatly abated and the painters are going over every inch of the interior with paint and varnish. Many of the rooms which had become somewhat musty and darkened by the closing of the walls have been brightened considerably with new light colored paint.

Little change has been made in the building of painting, a decision of the city regarding a new high school. Recommendations of the survey board from the state department of education indicate that the school building is inadequate for the city and with this in mind the school board withheld any radical changes in the interior. Many repairs, however, have been made and the building will be in first class shape for the new year.

There has been much conjecture on the part of local educators as to the enrollment of the high school this year. Some believe that it may drop by as many as one hundred students as a direct result of the war.

Approximately this number of students are expected to leave the city for military service in the near future. The students were from the neighboring rural districts. With the present shortage of labor, it is not unlikely that many of the positions held by the farm boys during the summer, and will be forced to keep them at home during the coming school year.

It is expected that many more permits will be issued this year to children to work, for the new state law has raised the age limit from thirteen to seventeen years. Janesville has for some time had a rather large proportion of permits, presumably because of the type of manufacturing carried on in the city.

The many unemployed women have made big inroads on the school attendance, and it is reported that more permits are issued here than at any other place in the state.

Details of the new regulations regarding the working of children of school age will be in the hands of Clerk S. C. Burnham within a few days. All permits must be issued by the state, and the commission through Mr. Burnham, who is the local deputy of the board.

WILL MAKE EFFORTS TO ARREST SLACKERS

City and County Officials Will Organize to Secure Arrest of Those Who Failed to Register.

An organized effort on the part of the city and county officials will soon be made to secure the arrest of all those eligible men who did not register for the draft. Although no official notices have been received to this effect, it is expected that Janesville and vicinity will follow the example of the larger cities where all men are required to carry registration cards with them at all times.

Mayor Fathers has received a letter from the Chief of Police of Chicago, who is headed this district, to the effect that efforts are to be made to gather in all those who failed to comply with the order of the president.

The mayor requests that the voters lists be examined and compared with the registration lists so that the eligible men may be checked. If any names are found on the voters lists that are not on the registration lists, these men are to be reported and action will be started to discover the cause.

Chicago and Milwaukee, in addition to other large cities, have started a campaign to arrest all slackers. Members of the U. S. army and navy, in addition to the police, are spending their time gathering the men together who cannot present cards. A large number of men have been taken and put into the army or other branches of service. The large percentage of these men are transients who wander about the country.

It is thought that very few men in this vicinity failed to register, but the effort will be made to see whether any new arrivals can present their cards. This system going into effect throughout the country will soon bring all the men who were eligible to register under the hand of the law.

BLUFF STREET SOON READY FOR TRAFFIC

Railroad Company Must Repair Tracks Before Street Will Be Opened to Traffic.—City Calls Attention to Ordinance.

The construction of the new pavement on North Bluff street has been completed but has not as yet been accepted by the city officials. The work on laying the pavement material was completed today, but before the street will be formally opened for the use of traffic the railroad tracks must be repaired by the railroad company. The material to repair the part of the street used by the railroad company has not arrived.

When opened for the use of traffic Bluff street will be one of the best streets in the city. The city officials have called the attention of the public to the fact that a city ordinance states that the pavement and rubbish shall not be burned on the streets of the city. This ordinance will be strictly enforced on Bluff street, due to the fact that the pavement would be materially affected by a flame.

THREE YEAR OLD BOY BREAKS LEG IN FALL

Son of Reverend Hazen, Former Pastor of Baptist Church, Falls From Second Story Window.

Brother Hazen, three-year-old son of Reverend F. C. Hazen, former minister at the Baptist church of this city, fell out a second story window at the Baptist church parsonage Sunday afternoon and sustained a broken leg.

Brother Hazen and his wife, Mrs. Hazen, and their two sons have been visiting friends in Janesville for the past few days and on Sunday they paid a visit to their former home.

While the boys were playing football on the grass below the parsonage, the three-year-old boy fell out of the window and landed on his own head and broke his leg.

The screen happened to be loose and he fell out landing on the grass below. It was thought that he was seriously hurt at first but Doctors Pember and Snodgrass, who examined the lad, found that he had broken his leg above the knee. Rev. Hazen and family left for their home this morning.

ELECTRICITY'S LATEST ACHIEVEMENT—CLEAN, SMOOTH TRANS-MOUNTAIN TRAVEL

Through the medium of a kite string came man's mightiest servitor. Through its forces, time and space have been obliterated. Whispers carry across the continent—night is turned into day—messages flash through the air.

And now again through the enterprise of man, electricity has been given a new, and perhaps greater, work, that the nation's commerce may move swiftly, surely across the mountains that divide the continent. The month clean, thoroughly enjoyable—the mighty spark has been won from mountain cataraacts to electricity a great railway.

On the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway for 440 miles through the Belt, Rocky and Bitter Root mountains, steam has given place to electricity. Trains are now whizzing the 211 miles of main line through the snow-capped Cascades, Washington.

And so successful has been the operation of these electrified divisions that the railway is now electrifying the 211 miles of main line through the snow-capped Cascades, Washington.

When next you journey to Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland or other cities in the Pacific Northwest, take either of those famous trains, "The Olympian" or "The Columbian," and enjoy the delights of electric travel, over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Freedom.

On the northern bank of the Timpanog the Brewster street, of which the wagon bridge is a prolongation, becomes a country road, forking a few hundred yards from the bridge approach to send one of its branches northward among the Little Creek ranches and another westward up the right bank of the stream.

At this fork of the road, between eleven and twelve o'clock of the night of alarms, Sheriff Harding's party of special deputies began to assemble. Under each man's saddle flap was slung the regulation weapon of the West—a semiautomatic repeating rifle; and the small troop bunching itself in the river bank looked serviceably militant and businesslike.

An automobile rolled silently down the mesa road from the north and came to a stand among the horses. The sheriff drew rein beside the car and spoke to one of the two occupants.

"Well, Mr. Smith, we're all here," "How many?" was the curt question.

"Twenty."

"Good. Here is your authority"—handing the legal papers to the officer. "Before we go in you ought to know the facts. A few hours ago a man named McGraw, calling himself a deputy United States marshal and claiming to be acting under instructions from Judge Leach's court in Red Butte, took possession of our dam and camp. On the even chance that he isn't what he claims to be, we are going to arrest him and every man in his crowd. Are you game for it?"

"I'm game to serve any papers that Judge Warner's got the nerve to issue," was the big man's reply.

"That's the talk; that's what I hoped to hear you say. Was Stauton arrested?"

"No sure was. Strothers found him in the Ephraim House bar, and the idea of taking him down here would have set a war blanket afire. Just the same, he had to go along with Jimmie and get himself locked up."

"That is the first step; now if you're ready, we'll take the next." Harding rode forward and the advance began. For the first mile or so the midnight silence was unbroken save by the subdued progress noises and the murmurings of the nearby river in its bed. Once Smith took the wheel while Starbuck rolled and lighted a cigarette. It was Starbuck who harked back to the talk which had been so abruptly broken off.

"Let's not head into this ruction with an unpicked bone betwixt us, John," he began gently. "Maybe I said too much, back yonder at the foot of the hill."

"No; you didn't say too much," was the low-toned reply. And then: "Billy, a few months ago I was jerked out of my place in life and set down in another place where practically everything I had learned as a boy and man had to be forgotten. I don't know that I'm making it understandable to you, but—"

"Yes, you are," broke in the man at the wheel. "I've had to turn two or three little double somersaults myself in the years that are gone."

"They used to call me 'Monty-Boy,' back there in Lawrenceville, and I fitted the name," Smith went on. "I've just had to do the best I could out here. I found that I had a body that could stand man-sized hardship, and a kind of savage nerve that could give and take punishment, and a soul that could drive both body and nerve to the limit. Also, I've found out what it means to love a woman."

Starbuck checked the car's speed a little more to keep it well in the rear of the ambling cavalcade.

"That's your one best bet, John," he said soberly.

"It is. I've cleaned out another room since you called me down back yonder in the Little Creek road, Starbuck. I can't trust my own leadings any more."

they are altogether too primitive and brutal; so I'm going to take hers. She'd send me into this fight that is just ahead of us, and all the other fights that are coming, with a heart big enough to take in the whole world. She said I'd understand, some day; that I'd know that the only great man is one who is too big to be little; who can fight without hating; who can die to make good, if that is the only way that offers."

"That's Corry Baldwin, every day in the week, John. They don't make 'em any finer than she is," was Starbuck's comment. And then: "I'm beginning to kick myself for not letting you go and have one more round-up with her. She's doing you good, right along."

"You didn't stop me," Smith affirmed; "you merely gave me a chance to stop myself. It's all over now, Billy, and my little race is about run. But whatever happens to me, either this night, or beyond it, I shall be a free man. You can't put handcuffs on a soul and send it to prison, you know. That is what Corona was trying to make me understand; and I couldn't—or wouldn't."

Over a low hill just ahead the pole-bracketed lights at the dam were staring themselves against the sky, and the group of horsemen halted at the head of the railroad trestle which marked the location of the north side unloading station. Harding had sent two of his men forward and they reported that there were no guards on the north bank, and that the stagings, on the down-stream face of the dam, were also unguarded. Thereupon Harding made his dispositions. Half of the posse was to go up the northern bank, dismount, and rush the camp by way of the stagings. The remaining half, also on foot, was to cross at once on the railroad trestle, and to make its approach by way of the wagon road skirting the mesa foot.

At an agreed-upon signal, the two detachments were to close in upon the company buildings in the construction camp, trusting to the surprise and the attack from opposite directions to overcome any disparity in numbers.

At Smith's urgings, Starbuck went with the party which crossed by way of the railroad trestle. Smith himself accompanying the sheriff's detachment. With the horses left behind under guard at the trestle head, the up-river approach was made by both parties simultaneously, though in the darkness, and with the breadth of the river intervening, neither could see the movements of the other. Smith kept his place beside Harding, and to the sheriff's query he answered that he was unarmed.

"You've got a nerve," was all the comment Harding made, and at that they topped the slight elevation and came among the stone debris in the north-side quarries.

Two days earlier, two hours earlier, perhaps, Smith would have begged a weapon and flung himself into the fray with blood lust blinding him to everything save the battle demands of the moment. But now the final milestone in the long road of his metamorphosis had been passed and the dark-some valley of elemental passions was left behind.

From the quarry cutting the view struck out by the camp mastheads was unobstructed. The dam and the uncompleted power house, still figuring to the eye as skeleton masses of form timbering, lay just below them, and on the hither side the flooding torrent thundered through the spillway gates, which had been opened to their fullest capacity. Between the quarry and the northern dam-head ran the smooth concrete channel of the main ditch canal, with the water in the reservoir lake still lapping several feet below the level of its entrance to give assurance that, until the spillways should be closed, the charter-saving stream would never pour through the canal.

On the opposite side of the river the dam-head and the camp street were deserted, but there were lights in the commissary, in the office shack, and in the little Pete Simms' canteen dory. From the latter quarter sounds of revelry rose above the spillway thunderings, and now and again a drunken figure lurched through the open door to make its way uncertainly toward the rank of bunk houses.

Harding was staring into the farther nimbus of the electric rays, trying to pick up some sign of the other half of his posse, when Smith made a suggestion.

"Both of your parties will have the workmen's bunk houses in range, Mr. Harding, and we mustn't forget that Colonel Baldwin and Williams are prisoners in the timekeeper's shack. If the guns have to be used—"

"There won't be any wild shooting, of the kind you're thinking of," returned the sheriff grimly. "There ain't a single man in this posse that can't hit what he aims at, nine times out of ten. But here's hope! we can gather 'em in without the guns. If they ain't lookin' for us—"

The interruption was the whining song of a jacketed bullet passing overhead, followed by the crack of a rifle. "Down, boys!" said the sheriff softly, setting the example by sliding into the ready-made trench afforded by the dry ditch of the outlet canal; and as he said it a sharp fusillade broke out, with fire spluttering from the commissary building and others from the mesa beyond to show that the surprise was balked in both directions.

"They must have had scouts out," was Smith's word to the sheriff, who was cautiously reconnoitering the newness developed situation from the shelter of the canal trench. "They are evidently ready for us, and that knocks your plan in the head. Your men can't cross these stagings under fire."

"Your 'troops' are all right, anyway," said Harding. "They're pouring out of the bunk houses and that saloon over there and taking to the hills like a flock of scared chickens." Then to his men: "Scatter out, boys, and get the range on that commissary shed. That's where most of the rustlers are cached."

Home-Reading Course For Citizen-Soldiers

(Issued by the War Department and all rights to reprint reserved.)

This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attempt to give binding rules and directions. These are contained in the various manuals and regulations of the United States Army, to which this course is merely introductory.

LESSON NO. 12.

TEAMWORK IN THE ARMY.

(Preceding Lessons: 1. Your Post of Honor. 2. Making Good as a Soldier. 3. Nine Qualities of a Soldier. 4. Getting Ready for Camp. 5. First Days in Camp. 6. Cleanliness in Camp. 7. Your Health. 8. Marching and Care of Feet. 9. Your Equipment and Arms. 10. Recreation in Camp. 11. Playing the Game.)

So far in this course we have been taking up some of the problems which each soldier has to face and solve for himself, how to adjust himself quickly as possible to the routine of camp life; how to keep himself and all his belongings clean in spite of the difficulties in the way; how to look after his own health and comfort; how to take care of arms and equipment; and how to get real enjoyment, as well as benefit, out of army life.

If the course were to stop just at this point, it might leave in your mind a false impression. For after all, the soldier is an individual player in the great game of war; he is valuable chiefly as a member of a team. It is a team of an enormous number of men, each doing his own part in a complicated way. This team we call the army.

Your army life will be more interesting if you know in a general way how the team is organized. This will enable you to see more clearly where you fit in and what is expected of you. If you have been working for a business concern, you are familiar with many of the elements of a business organization. You have been in touch with the same things under different names.

Need for Teamwork. In a factory or store or office—wherever large numbers of people work together—there is almost always some one in direct charge of each group of workers. The person may be called a foreman in the shop, a chief clerk in an office, a floor walker in a department store, or by any one of a number of other titles; in the army we call him a corporal or a sergeant. Going up a step, you know that in every large concern there are numerous officers who take charge of various departments of the business such as the superintendent, the traffic manager, the advertising manager, the general manager, the president, and so on; in the army we call the men in corresponding positions captains, majors, colonels, and generals. Finally, you have at the head of the business concern a president or general manager who directs everything; in the army he is a commanding general.

The general likeness between business organization and army organization is helpful, but must not be carried too far. There is only one vital difference: The average business concern is somewhat easy-going; the responsibility for each piece of work is not always definitely fixed. In the army everybody, on the other hand, is held to the strictest account. There is very seldom any doubt as to the man to be held responsible for each task.

Responsibility Always Fixed. Within each rank, from major general eral to private, every man has his individual ranking, depending upon his length of service in the office which he holds. This ranking insures that in every situation somebody always has authority and is responsible for whatever is done. Even if two private soldiers are working together without supervision, the one who has been longer in the service takes charge and the other must obey his orders. This rule applies everywhere.

In civilian life there is time for argument. You may have better ideas than your boss about how a certain thing should be done, or you may convince him and get his original orders changed. In army life nothing of this kind can be permitted. The officer in charge always has the full responsibility. Whatever orders he gives must be instantly obeyed. It is far better to take action even though the thing may not be done in the best possible way, than it is to stand still and debate. Lack of immediate action in the crisis of a battle might mean that the army would be defeated, thousands of lives lost, and possibly the honor of the country stained.

Think over this difference between army organization and civilian organization. The longer you think about it, the more clearly you will see why your own interests demand that you should fit into your place in the army and follow instructions much more strictly than is necessary in civilian life. The army is a team, and every man must be a part of it. This means that soldiers are not brought to trial in civil courts, except for certain serious crimes, but are subject to military courts of inquiry, summary courts, and court-martial. However, this will never be a question of much importance to the great majority of men in the national army.

Success in Winning Victories. Success in winning victories is the object for which the army exists. In comparison nothing else counts. Every officer and every soldier must be ready to make any service big or little, to accomplish this object. An officer may spend years in working out solutions to military problems, only to find in the end that all the time for what he has done is swallowed up in the general reputation of the army. If this proves to be the case, he has no cause for complaint. It is the rule of the army that every thing must be done for the good of the service.

In the same way you may be called upon to carry through some dangerous mission or perform unpleasant duties. Every such call is an opportunity to show your loyalty to the service and to the nation. Remember in all these cases that hundreds of thousands of other men in the army, from top to bottom, like yourself are working first and all the time for the success of the team.

It is usually the army with the strongest team spirit that fights its way through to victory. Try to cultivate that spirit in the national army both in yourself and among your comrades.
